

ABSTRACT

5 This invention concerns a dispensing box for paper towels comprising a container and a cover linked by a strap hinge to the container. A retractable inner box inverted in the container defines a section for receiving a stack of towels. The inner box has a base and an elongated opening arranged in the base for removing the towels therethrough. The cover opening and the towel passage through the elongated 10 opening enables the towels stored in a chamber with controlled atmosphere to be pulled out for use. The section can be divided into two chambers, one moistened and one dry, by a partition to provide two types of towels for use. A cover storage can also be installed inside the cover.